

Federal Register

---

Revised 1992

---

The Federal Register:
What It Is
And
How To Use It

Notices

The Notices section contains documents other than rules or proposed rules that are applicable to the public. Documents appearing in this section are not codified in the Code of Federal Regulations.

Examples include notices of hearings and investigations, committee meetings, agency decisions and rulings, delegations of authority, filing of petitions and applications, issuance or revocation of licenses, grant application deadlines, and availability of environmental impact statements.

Although the preamble format is required for rule and proposed rule documents only, agencies are encouraged to use it in their notice documents as well.