amended, the maximum level of imports into Districts I-IV of residual fuel oil to be used as fuel shall be 425,000 barrels daily for the allocation period January 1, 1960, through June 30, 1960. This action constitutes an adjustment upward of the maximum level (365,000 barrels daily) now in effect in those Districts. Neither the present level nor the adjusted level includes residual fuel oil withdrawn from bonded warehouse for ships' supplies or for exportation.

In accordance with Proclamation 3279, however, the situation with respect to supply and demand for residual fuel oil will be kept under surveillance, and if circumstances warrant, appropriate adjustments will be made.

The basic allocations established as a result of 425,000 barrels daily maximum level of imports of residual fuel oil are, of course, for a six-month period, and individual importers may import all or any part of its allocation at any time during the period January 1-June 30, 1960. Imports may be accelerated well above the daily average during the first months of the period if, in the judgment of the importer, its own situation makes such action prudent and necessary.

Stock levels of residual fuel oil on the East and Gulf Coasts, while somewhat less, are comparable with those in recent years, and it is expected that such stocks, together with permissible imports and domestic production will be adequate to meet seasonal demands.

Stocks at the end of October for each of the three years of 1957, 1958, and 1959 on the East Coast and the Gulf Coast were:

	Barrels
1957.....	88,917,000
1958.....	85,624,000
1959.....	82,311,000

FRED A. SEATON,
Secretary of the Interior.
